

FOREWORD

F, in future years, through this Annual, we are able to cherish past reminiscenses of our happy high school days while students at N.H.H.S.; to recall our friends and classmates, who, by the hand of fate, might become separated from us, but who will always linger in our memories; to remember our beloved teachers who have so patiently striven to prepare us for our later life; and to leave to our posterity, the high school students of later years, our loving thoughts as the Class of '31, the authors of this book will have achieved success. HE staff of THE WILDCAT wishes to take this opportunity to express our appreciation to John Schiller, who so patiently and willingly aided us in our photographic work; to Miss Hester Struthers, who served as faculty advisor, and who greatly aided us by advice and deed in the preparation of this book, and to the merchants of Wilmington, who by advertising in our book made the publishing of this volume possible.

DEDICATION

T is with a pang that we, the Class of '31, let go our connections with New Hanover High School. For five years we have struggled within her walls to equip ourselves with knowledge and learning so that we might serve our fellowmen, glorify the name of our school, and reach high attainments for ourselves

During these five years we were inspired by something that we could feel, but were unable to see. It is beyond human ability to put into words that which might describe this feeling. But this we know: through this feeling we were inspired to do nobler and finer things. In our lessons we were encouraged, in our activities we were enlightened, and life as a whole became more beautiful with deeper meanings.

Thus, with deepest gratitude to those from whom we inherited this spirit of love, loyalty, and honor, and with a sincere prayer upon our lips that our posterity will forever maintain and extend this spirit, we, the Senior Class of nineteen thirty-one, dedicate this, our volume of THE WILDCAT, to that which we have come to know, to love, and to cherish— WILDCAT SPIRIT. Long live old thirty-ones, Our class we hold so dear, We'll ever love and cherish That fair name which we hear.

We pledge to you our loyalty, Unending, firm, and true; And may our lives in coming years Bring honor and fame to you.

To thirty-one forever We pledge our hearts anew, United by ties of deep friendship, Our purpose staunch and true.

N. H. H. S. to you we owe A never-ending debt;The happy days we've spent with you We never will forget.

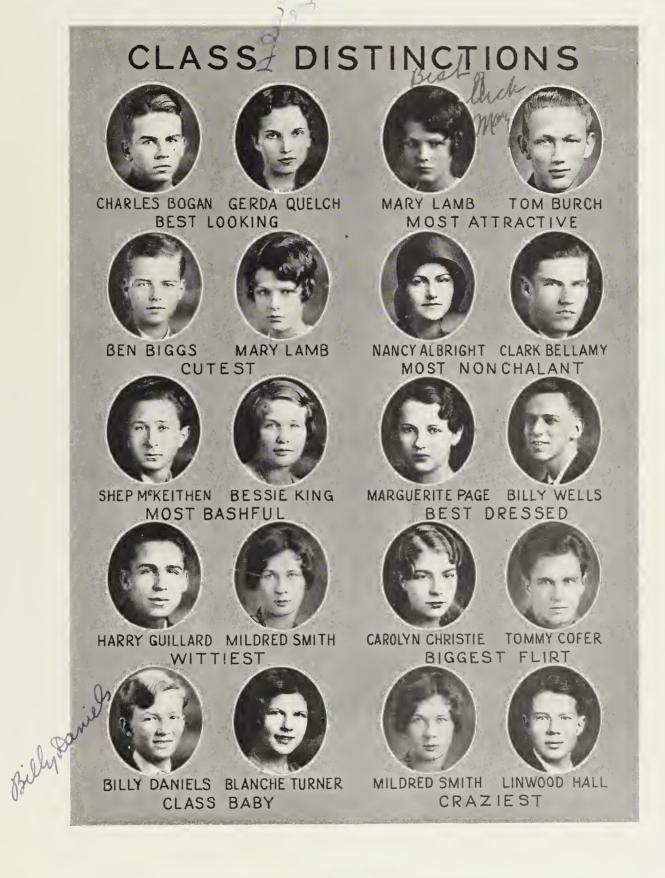

We will cheer for the Black and Orange Until the fight is done; And here's a shout forever for Our dear old thirty-one.

Prophetical?

Any Ole Place, July 25, 1956.

Dear Wee Willie:

Man, man! What news I have to tell you. Give me your undivided attention and clean your ears out, for I know what I have to say will be of interest to you. I have just returned from a visit to Wilmnigton. Yes, dear old Wilmington, and while there I saw a great number of our old classmates who graduated with us in the beloved class of '31 at New Hanover High School, home of wildcat spirit. But let me tell you about it.

On the first of the month I landed a job with the Clark Bellamy Shoe Company, and John Hoggard, sales manager of the firm, instructed me to go down to Wilmington and try to get a contract from Ed. Taylor, the biggest footed man in the two Carolinas. Was I tickled? I hadn't seen or heard of Wilmington since I graduated from New Hanover in '31. Well, as the next day was the glorious Fourth, I set out for the city by the sea very much enthused.

I arrived in Wilmington about 9 a. m., but I got in bad at the very beginning. I came upon the city limits before I knew it, and as I was making around a hundred miles per in my new Wootten Brothers Roadster, who should catch me for speeding but my old friend, Joe Simon, who is head speed cop down that way now. I immediately went to see Judge Meares Harriss, and after putting him in a good humor by giving him some Robert Ruark chewing tobacco, he let me go free. I parked my car at the Bill Hall garage, caught a bus driven by Herbert Jones that belonged to the Oscar Hamilton and Clyde White Transit Co., which was built by the Robert Warwick Motors Co., and came on in to Wilmington and put up at a swell hotel owned by Jack Johnson and Thomas Woody. As I entered the lobby of this magnificent hotel I was shocked into hysterics. There was Claude Howell peddling cigars behind a cigar stand that was owned by the George Murray Cigar Chain. Upon observing Claude's wares I noticed that he was still loyal to his former classmates, as he was selling Florence Stanley's vegetable compounds, James Feagle's trick toothpicks, Napoleon Owen's rat poison, and books written by the well known authors, Margaret Boylan and Kathleen Capps.

I left Claude and his stand and went over to register. But behold! There were head clerks Ben Adams and Arrington Wallace engaged in a fast game of jack rocks. After interrupting this absorbing game I registered and called for a bell boy. Lo! There was no such animal, for out came running the bell girls, Marguerite Page, Carolyn Christie, Elizabeth Jenkins, Elaine von Oesen and Italyne Baggett. Boy, they were belle girls, too, and what a loud ring they made. They grabbed my luggage and escorted me into an elevator operated and agitated by Skipper Genevieve Corbett, and we flew up to the sixty-third story. (I always did know that Genevieve would go high up in this world.)

My room was swell, and as I was tired I threw myself on the bed, hoping to get a little rest. I had only been asleep for what seemed a few seconds when I was awakened by the consarndest noise I ever heard. I jumped up and looked out the window. There was a wonderful parade passing by commemorating Independence Day. It was being led by Louie Woodbury, who was the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of the city by the sea. Behind the leaders, with long steps and an important look, came Mayor Billy Wells. Came next, a loud and huge brass band that was led and directed by Weil King. This was the noise that had awakened me. There was a vast number of pretty floats in the parade that had been decorated by Edith Morton. I thought that the Susie Flynn floral float was the prettiest, although the Evelyn Newton and Gertrude Murrell milliner shop float was a close second. Along about the middle of the parade was a special imported clown from England performing antics that were amusing to the kiddies. This was none other than the talented and well known artist, Sir Thomas Fanning Wood. Bringing up the rear of the parade were the police and fire departments. The law enforcers were led by Royal Loyd and the fire fighters were headed by Chief Lloyd Jackson.

After the parade had passed I decided that I would take a stroll down the street and take in the sights. Has Wilmington changed? What a skyline the old city by the sea has now? The tallest building of all is the Hugh Humphrey Chess building, but it only overlaps the Winifred Stevenson Manufacturing skyscraper by a few yards.

After strolling around for about an hour I suddenly discovered that I was lost. I didn't know which end was up nor why. I saw a cop a few blocks away and lit out to catch him. As I had on a pair of Phillip Hall's rubber bottoms I soon overtook him. Imagine my surprise when I discovered that he was none other than William Peck. Well, he showed me the direction to my hotel and I started home. I soon came upon the waterfront. Was I startled? All I could see was boats, ships, yachts, liners, steamers, and what not. There were piers and even some state owned terminals. Later I learned that Governor Emory Grubbs and Attorney General Nathan Schwartz had led the fight in putting this bill over. As I looked out upon the water I saw two tugs of the Peck Brothers Towage Co. anchored by a ship belonging to the Elliot Boone and Linwood Todd Steamship Line. Also there was a freighter belonging to the Adelaide Peiffer and Mildred West Tiddely Wink Co. coming into port to discharge its cargo of checkers and ping pong balls belonging to none other than Dexter Hornaday. I was certainly pleased to notice that Wilmington was still progressing, and that a dredge belonging to the Thomas Cofer and Clara Vanderwal Dredge Co. was digging a canal to connect the James Carr Pool Ball Manufacturing Co. with Joe Clendenin and A. B. Love Fertilizer Co. After taking in a few more sights I started to go, but seeing a United States cruiser heave into sight I waited until it had docked. I was pleased to discover that none other than Claiborne Gray was admiral of the boat. He told me that the cruiser had been constructed by the Robinson Brothers Shipbuilding Concern. By the way, it had two high powered airplanes on deck that had been designed by Ben Biggs and Dwight McEwen.

On my way back to the hotel I was attracted by a huge crowd gathered around a platform. It was all that State Patrolmen Joseph Allard and Eleby Hayes could do to keep the crowd in check. I hastened towards the mob to find out what the excitement was all about, and can you imagine my astonishment upon discovering U. S. Congressman Jack Pool speaking to this mob. He was the main speaker on the Independence Day program. In his address, he brought out the wonderful progress the Wilmington people had made in the last decade, he also eulogized the spirit of the Wilmington people.

Soon I returned to my hotel and entered the dining room to eat. Boy, what a swell eating house! I was served by Head Waiter Linwood Hall, assisted by Linerieux Barber, Catherine Shivar and Aloysius Blackham. As for the food, it was swell. I learned later that it had been prepared by the delicatessens Agnes Peschau, Katherine Biggs and Elizabeth Bridgers. After I had finished this delicious meal I spied my old friends, Mary Taylor and Mildred Gibson, who were hostesses of the joint. I asked them to dance with me and we twirled to the music rendered by Hugh McGowan's Syncopating Serenaders. After the dancing a swell program was given. Charlotte Allard and Henry Benton were masters of ceremonies. First, a chorus composed of Dot Holman, Marie Scott, Helen Smith, Marguerite King, Elizabeth Hancock and Louise Henderson appeared. They were swell and did some mighty clever dancing and stepping. Following this number appeared Linwood Green and Josephine Stanland, who gave a tap dance specialty. Jane Williams then entertained with a few solos and popular numbers written by Eleanor Beasley and Juanita Beach. They were published by the Alice Schadt and Billy Salling Howling Music Publishing Co. Being very fatigued I went to get my coat, which I had checked with Mary Bowden, Rosa Byrd and Pansy Fishburn. They informed me that old Joe Baker was operating a radio station on the roof of the hotel.

As I entered the lobby to return to my room I ran into Billy Rehder, age five, color, white, who was selling papers. I purchased the Navassa Gazette from him and retired to my room to read it. This paper was edited by Eunice Callahan and owned by Leah Barefoot, and had some mighty interesting articles in it. I turned to the want ad page and this caught my eye: "Lost: my voice. Reward, if returned before sundown to Mildred Smith." Another snappy ad was this: "We have the finest hearses in town. People are just dying to ride in them. The Agatha Garrison and Lora Sell Funeral Parlor." I was very interested in the next ad: "For sale—paint. Especially for high school students who think that they are in prison and would like to tell it to the world. The Charles King and James Craig Paint Co." On another page was an interesting political statement: "I wish to thank all my friends who voted for me to be garbage inspector in the recent election. Signed, Calvin Anders." I then turned to the sports section, edited by Robert Griffin. Here were pictures of the world champion athletes, Ed. (Hercules) Fonvielle, strongest man in the world; Tom Lever, ping pong champion; Billy Andrews, barnyard golf champion; Lauder Bishop, backgammon artist and champion. Becoming tired of reading I cast the paper away and turned on the radio made by the Cathryn Benton Loud Speaking Company.

Through the static I heard the voice of Calder Atkinson arguing that the United States Government should take measures to prevent married women from using an excess of lip stick and rouge. He was answered by Walter Sprunt and his lawyer, Eugene Bullard. Sprunt was in the lip stick-rouge business and was afraid that his business would be hurt. The next rendition on the air was an advertisement of the Doris Council snore stopping compounds. This program was in charge of Rivers Hanson and Leila Stack, well known physicians, who were making a determined fight to cure snoring in the bed. After this program the mellow voiced Nanette Currie told a few bedtime stories. Suddenly came the voice of the star announcer, Claudia Foy. She announced that a terrible catastrophe had taken place in the western part of the state. A strike had occurred in all the large cotton mills. However, it was pleasant to know that an organization of relief workers headed by Helen Scoggins, with her assistants, Harriet Abel, Louise Browne, Eva Carter and Dorothy Clendenin, were on their way to help the strikers who were starving to death. After this announcement the program was resumed. Next came a debate between Harry Gilliard and Henry Goldstein. Harry was upholding the affirmative of the question, which was, "Resolved, that a lollypop is better than an ice cream cone." With this I turned the radio off and laid down to rest.

Then it dawned upon me. I knew that I had forgotten all about Wrightsville Beach. I hastily jumped up, snatched my coat, and went down to catch one of the Paul Willis Power Company electric cars. As the car hadn't arrived I went in the Viola White drug store and purchased a dose of the Cynthia Head mixture as I had a headache. At length the car arrived and imagine my amazement when I saw that the conductors were none other than Shepherd McKeithan and Wm. Livingston. I was soon on my way to the beach, and to pass away the time I began reading the Ida Crews car advertising cards. There were two ads that I was particularly interested in, the Marie Saint Amand chewing gum ad, indorsed by several of the most prominent old maid school teachers of New Hanover High School. Among them were Catherine Martindale, Wilhelmina Kuhl, Mary Francis Nesbitt, Ruth Laney, Louise Page, Eloise Brown and Hilda McPherson. The other ad was a large placard advertising the Eldridge Fergus fish markets.

I spent the rest of the time noticing how built up the countryside was. There were quite a few tourist camps over by the highways that I understood were run by Ernest Shinn and Anna Berry. At one of them I noticed Charles Talley was parked and pitching camp. Charles was making a tour of the western hemisphere in search of ancient relics for a circus. I noticed in one cage there was a monkey man, Landis Welsh, caged in. His trainer, Wm. Evans, was feeding him peanuts and pop corn manufactured by Tom Sinclair. A little further down the way I noticed a handsome brick building. Upon inquiring I was informed that this was the Elizabeth Struthers night club, and it was here that the noted gangster and gunman, Curtis Hewett, hung out. Curtis Hewett had built up a wonderful racketeer gang composed of Beverly Stokley, Herbert Orman, Ruth Ellen James and Billy Holmes, and was making a big attempt to run the other bootlegger, Fred Hobbs, out of business. Soon we came to the sound. Good gee! Here again I noticed the wonderful progress that the old home folks had made. It was wonderful. There were pretty boulevards running up and down the sound, which I understand were constructed by the Adelaide Ahrens Construction Company. There were five causeways, all owned by LeRoy Davis, connecting the mainland and Wrightsville Beach. There were wonderful yachts cruising up and down the inland waterways and just perpetual lines of barges owned by the Lowenstein Barge Corporation, which I understand was about to run the Lowrimore Railroad line out of business.

- fur stand 1931) and guilding

As we neared the beautiful Shore Acres the first thing that caught my eye was a huge entertainment pavilion operated by Thurston Powell. Its program for the evening was advertised to the public by a huge electric sign erected by the Earl W. Brown Electric Co. I noticed that the features for the evening's entertainment were a song and dance specialty to be rendered by the Smith Sisters (not makers of cough drops), composed of Grayce, Francis and Eleanor. These girls were straight from the Dorothy Dellinger School of Dancing. Following this was to be an act by the hoola-hoola girls, straight from Hawaii. The names of these celebrities were Vera Bagwell and Dot Breeden. Following this specialty was to be a red hot romance on the screen, starring Zula Donnell and Charles Bogan.

Going across Banks Channel I noticed a large sign telling the world that here were the noted alligator and goldfish farms of Mary Lamb. I left the car at station No. 1 to witness the boat races being staged under the auspices of the Feagle Tooth Pick Co. In the race I noticed that the contestants were speed kings Katherine King, Emily King, Vivian King. Lillian King was driving a boat built by the Joseph King Boat Co. and Gilbert Pickard had a Bessie King engine on his speed craft. After the boat races were over I walked over to the beach back of the Clifton Vann hotel. I saw a big mob gathering around someone on a soap box. Upon investigating I discovered that it was Louise McGloughon lecturing on the subject, "How to catch, clean and eat the fish known as the sandperch." My attention was next attracted by Miss Ada Cole, world famous automobile speed queen, who was driving her speeding runabout manufactured by Olive Downs. She was attempting to set a world's record. I noticed John Schiller, star photographer of the Mayer News Reel, attempting to secure a movie of Miss Cole.

I walked on down the beach to observe a beauty contest being staged under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, with President Louise Highsmith directing it. I recognized Gerda Quelch, Alice Boatwright, Elizabeth Jones and May A. Keels as participants in the contest.

All of a sudden practically every person on the beach began running towards a U. S. runchaser that was towing some boat in. Following the crowd I soon discovered that Captain Ella Wettig was in charge of the runchaser, and that she had captured a rum runner owned by the notorious bootlegger, Fred Hobbs. Among the crew of the rum runner I saw such notorious characters as Katherine Walsh, Dorothy Woolerton, Elbert Wilson and Robert Hughes.

After this exciting episode was over I hung around for a while longer, and then decided to go down to the southern end of the beach. On the way down I was attracted to a pavilion where a prize fight was being waged. World's flyweight champion, Olive Dixon, was fighting the world's heavyweight champion, Mary Batson. Lucile Stewart was the referee. I resumed my journey. As I was passing another hotel I went in to get a cold drink and was told by the house detective, Anne Chadwick, that the tired business people were holding a convention. I sat in on this convention for a little while. Among the delegates to this convention I noticed Dexter Hornaday, Caroline Josenhans and Harry Payne. They were having a splendid program. Entertainers from the home for the feebleminded gave a skit. On this number appeared David Scott and Robert Hodgkins. Next the deaf and dumb quartet composed of Nancy Albright, Catherine Blake, Jack Farmer and Henry Rhodes whistled a few numbers. After the entertainment was concluded I left.

As I arrived at Station No. 7, where the McCart dancing pavilion was located, I noticed that the Fannie Mae Zellers Carnivals were located and performing. Of course I took them in. I first went in and Saw John Kuhlken training his pet monkeys. He and Glavenn Craig, widely known flea trainer, put on an act together with their pet monkeys and fleas. Afterwards though, John had to use Farrow powder, special flea poison, to get the trained fleas off his monkeys. I went into the freak shows next. Here fire eater Billy Daniels was performing, and I witnessed the champion snake charmers, Rachel Carroll and Edythe Ellis, hypnotize a few reptiles.

I next went out on the beach again in front of Lumina. Here were lifeguards Virginia Huband and Edith Montford on duty. After conversing with them a few minutes I decided that it was time I was returning to Wilmington, so I caught the next car back.

Samo

As the car pulled in down at Front and Princess I noticed a large crowd making a big noise. I soon found out that it was a homecoming celebration for Alice Wescott, noted explorer, who was just returning from an expedition down in South America. Among Explorer Wescott's party I noticed Calvin Dickinson, Beatrice Davis and Elizabeth Horne. The special welcoming committee appointed by Mayor Wells was composed of Kitty Nichols, Virginia Neal and Elizabeth Davis.

I then went to a picture show at the Mattocks' Theatre and by the time I got out it was time to retire and I went to my hotel and drifted off to sleep dreaming of the wonderful days and wonderful times I had at the finest school in the world, N. H. H. S.

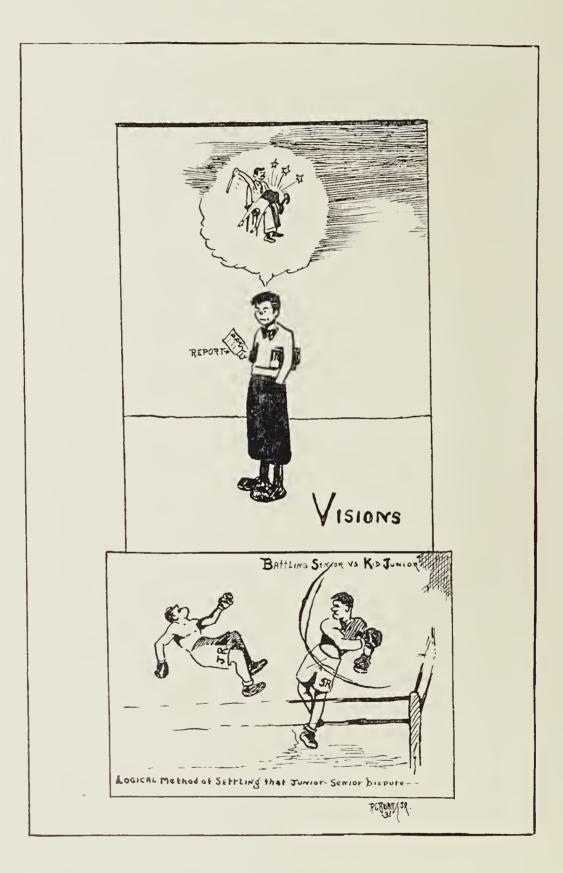

Your friend and ex-fellow Wildcat,

P. WILLIE JONES.

P. S.: Needless to say, I secured the shoe contract from the big footed Taylor.

History

The WILDCAT

Composed of two classes to make up the Fresh, Predestined foes thus becoming one flesh, The seventh and eighth grades combined into one Completely upset all the fresh Freshies fun; For those whom we hoped to look down on with scorn Were merged into one with us—that was a thorn. As Sophs we went lovingly around arm in arm With those upon whom we had hoped to reek harm; And now as proud Seniors we mount the front steps In loving companionship with those same Preps.

Starting as Freshmen we did things so well, One after another proud precedents fell. The dignified Seniors were struck with dismay To hear lowly Freshmen have something to say. As Freshmen and Sophomores we helped them to stage Successive state championships—pigskin and cage. As Sophomores we placed many leaders; and my! A Soph became head of the whole State Hi-Y.

The Sandspur was founded in our freshman year; We helped with its struggles throughout its career. The paper was almost turned over en masse To be handled by us when a Junior Class. As Seniors we saw it pass out of the picture, And maybe you cheered (if it nocture and kicture).

As Juniors we put on a follies that took Everybody by storm, and their sides fairly shook. The teachers beheld with their very own eyes Themselves on the stage—some smiles and some sighs. The fashion show pulled by the womanless women Was cure for the blues and left sober eyes swimmin'. The banquet we served to the Seniors last year, 'Twas shocking to tell, and 'tis shocking to hear, We served in our bathsuits; it caused a commotion; But how could we help it? 'Twas served in the ocean.

Ho hum, we have come; heigh ho, now we go. The scene will be changing for us soon we know. We think they will miss us, but what a delusion! We simply make room for a newer confusion.

On Juniors, on Sophomores, on Freshmen, on all! Come take possession of old N. H. Hall. Following our lead boost her up to the skies; For now we go, leaving good wishes, goodbyes.

Last Will and Testament

Whereas, we, the most highly exalted, efficient and dignified Senior Class of 1931 of N. H. H. S., having arrived at that state of mind considered as the highest attainable in high school due to the result of five (for some four) years of grinding labor and toil, and

Whereas, we are cognizant of our approaching demise from said N. H. H. S., and greatly saddened by the realization thereof, and

Whereas, we do so desire to will, bequeath, give and bestow upon those who follow after, such goods, powers and privileges, such eccentricties, individualities, traits, peculiarities and misfortunes as we may possess;

Therefore, we do make, declare, publish and present this, our last will and testament, declaring void any such instrument formerly made.

Wherefore:

We, the Senior Class, do bequeath to the Seniors of next year our brightness, our perseverance, and our reputation for being the most brilliant Senior Class to ever graduate from New Hanover High Sschool.

We, the Senior Class, do will to the Juniors of next year our love for our teachers who so patiently strived to pound into our heads knowledge and learning.

We, the Senior Class, do bestow upon the incoming Sophomore Class our love for N. H. H. S., and the devotion and spirit we showed as students of New Hanover.

We, the Senior Class, do will, bestow, bequeath and give to the green Freshmen of next year all that we possess, our traits, our powers, and our knowledge, believing that before they leave school they will greatly need them.

I, Paul Willis, leave my heart and hand to Margaret Graham.

I, Charles Talley, leave my knowledge for "phaetons" to Leo Little.

I, Carolyn (Squirmy) Christie, leave my flapperish ways to Mickey Ford.

I, Ed. (Hercules) Fonvielle, leave my physical strength to Nank Love.

I, Ed. Taylor, leave my enormous and huge feet to next year's football team, believing they will sadly be in need of a firm foundation.

I, Marie Saint Amand, leave my ability and art of chewing gum so gracefully to Lydia King.

I, Clark Bellamy, leave my ability to smoke a Murad to Steve Brown.

WILDCAT

Although the 1930 football season at N. H. H. S. can not be called an overwhelming success from the standpoint of games won and lost, we can say that the spirit and brand of sportsmanship manifested by the Wildcats would be a credit to any team and school. It is with pride that every true Wilmingtonian reviews the past season, for every player did more than merely fight to win, and the work of these boys, their spirit and sportsmanship shown, and their general attitude towards the whole matter will forever be an inspiration to admirers of fair play and football lovers of N. H. H. S.

Greatly handicapped by graduation, ineligible players for various reasons, and the loss of their star and captain, Rivers Hanson, the boys, aided by the wonderful work of Coaches Black and Harden, set about to mold into shape a football team that would be a credit to N. H. H. S. Needless to say, their work was not in vain.

Quite naturally, the outstanding players proved to be the Robinson brothers, Earl and Relmon, veterans of experience and skill. These two were a source of great strength on the defense and offense, many times circling the ends and hitting the line for substantial gains. The other two members of the backfield, Bellamy and Henderson, were by no means slouches and were always a constant worry to the opposing team. They put up a wonderful brand of football all season, and no little credit is due to them for the success the team enjoyed. Fox and Winstead, first stringers in the backfield, were a great aid in the development of the Wildcat machine and should also come in for their share of credit.

In the line, Kuhlken and Hoggard very, very capably performed at the position of ends. These two vets of last season's play, nine times out of ten "got their man" and were no slouches at pulling down passes thrown to them by the versatile backs either. Sinclair Beasley and Ed. Fonvielle were by far two of the best tackles in the eastern part of the state, and proved a bulwark of strength both on the defense and offense. Harry Gilliard and Herbert Jones, playing their first year on the varsity, developed themselves into wonderful guards. Little, but plucky, they held down their positions in true Wildcat style. Ed. Taylor, who took the place of Jones when he was hurt in mid-season, in the games he played showed up exceptionally well and much credit is due to him. At center Jerry Blackstock made a name for himself. He held down the pivot position in great style and also was exceptionally outstanding in his snapping.

We cannot fail to mention the wonderful work of the second team and scrubs. These plucky fellows went out to practice day after day and were a wonderful aid in the development of the team.

The team was efficiently coached by Fighting Bob Black, producer of two state championship elevens. He was ably assisted by Zack Williams and Pap Harden. The position of manager was held by Ben Adams, who performed his job in an efficient way, and the team is greatly indebted to him for his work in this capacity.

With many members of the first squad back next year, and with much good material coming from the second team, prospects for the '31 eleven are exceptionally bright.

Basket Ball

Greatly handicaped by loss of men from graduation, and financial losses, New Hanover's basketball team managed to fight and claw all season so as to gain an even break in number of games won and lost in the eastern championship title race. Playing under handicaps in practically every encounter, the team was undaunted and each player attempted to give a good account of himself as a basketball player. Like the football team, the Wildcats displayed throughout the entire season a high brand of true Wilcat spirit, and through their show of superb sportsmanship and fair play they gained the praise and commendation of every opponent.

With the return of only two letter men, Coach Zach Williams set about to build practically a new squad. Matthews and Winstead capably took care of the forward positions and were a power on the offensive as well as putting up a good floor game. Holland McKeithan developed into a wonderful center, and no doubt will be a great asset to the squad of next year. Shep McKeithan and Billy Andrews exhibited a rare talent at the position of guards, and no doubt the loss of these two boys will be keenly felt by next year's squad.

This was Coach Zack Williams first year as coach of the basketball team, and despite the defeats, his work with the boys in molding themselves into basketball players might be termed successful, and with the return of three first stringers prospects for the 1932 squad are very bright.

Girls' Basket Ball

Although the girls' basketball team suffered a few defeats during the 1931 year, the season was by no means unsuccessful. Greatly handicapped by the loss of many players due to graduation, they managed to develop a strong quintet and were able to prove victorious in many of the games played.

The team had a new coach in Miss Helen Barnwell, who succeeded Miss Elizabeth Bray. Miss Barnwell gave freely of her time and experience, and made from fairly good material a well organized squad.

Following in the footsteps of the boy athletes, the girls fought not merely just to win but for higher ideals, and they had the satisfaction of knowing that they splendidly upheld the spirit, honor and sportsmanship of New Hanover High School.

Mae Allen Keels, star guard, served as captain during the current season, and on the court she was ably assisted by forwards Laura Hay, Dot Clendenin and Mary Taylor, and guards Rachel Carroll, Dot Manning, Frances Smith and Eleanor Turrentine.

Track

Although failing to place very high in any of the track meets this year, the New Hanover High School track team was by no means unsuccessful. The team suffered severely from the loss of practically every veteran of last year's squad, and Coach Zack Williams bent his efforts towards building up a new team composed of mostly underclassmen. His work cannot be measured in terms of meets won and lost this season, but the fruits of his toil will be shown in future years.

The highlight of an uneventful season was in the interscholastic division of the Southern Conference Indoor Meet held at Chapel Hill, when N. H. H. S. managed to place third over a group of around forty entrants. The feature of the meet was the breaking of the seventy yard low hurdles record by Relmon Robinson.

Much credit is due the members of the team for their display of a stick-to-itiveness trait of character. Displaying perseverance throughout the season these boys worked hard to mold themselves into shape so as to make a name for themselves in the track world and bring fame to N. H. H. S. They truly displayed a fine example of Wildcat spirit and success is bound to be theirs in later years.
